COVID-19 has greatly disrupted personal and professional lives. SALISES staff rose to the challenge and continued to perform their tasks and fulfill the SALISES strategic plan directed by UWI’s Triple A goals of Access, Alignment and Agility and governed by SALISES’ strategic principles of transformation, excellence, accountability and mission-driven activities (TEAM).

Throughout the period preparations continued for the conversion of the MSc in Development Studies programme from face-to-face delivery mode to an online delivery platform. Staff undertook training sessions facilitated by the Commonwealth of Learning (COL) and received significant guidance from the Office of Online Learning (OOL).

On September 14, 2020, SALISES began the delivery of the new online MSc Programme with thirty-six new and six returning students. We look forward to providing an excellent programme with outstanding lecturers and dedicated support staff. In spite of the challenges presented by the pandemic, SALISES continues to strive to be successful.

March 5th, 2020, marked a momentous occasion for Sociologists in the Caribbean region. The Caribbean Sociological Association (CASA) was officially launched at The University of the West Indies Regional Headquarters at Mona, Jamaica. CASA seeks to contribute meaningfully to social change and development in the Caribbean through the active use of sociology in the production and dissemination of knowledge grounded in truth, justice, equality, respect for human differences and the environment.

As Caribbean countries grapple with the threat of COVID-19 to their sustainable development, CASA hosted two virtual public forums. The first forum titled “Covid-19 & the Caribbean: Social Fallout and Response” in conjunction with SALISES and the Department of Sociology, Psychology and Social Work, UWI, Mona took place on Tuesday 7th April 2020. The forum brought together the expertise of sociologists Professor Aldrie Henry-Lee specialist in Children/Child Rights and Social Policy; Dr Orville Taylor, Labour and Employment Rights specialist; Dr Roy McCree, Community Development & Youth specialist; Dr Dennis Edwards, Psychologist and Disaster Management and Response specialist and Dr Tomlin Paul, Medical Doctor and Dean of the Faculty of Medical Sciences, Mona. The discussion explored the conflicts between Caribbean cultural practices and public health measures that have been recommended and implemented.

The second virtual forum titled “COVID-19: Social Impact, Recovery and Resilience in the Caribbean,” was held in conjunction with SALISES and the Department of Sociology, Psychology and Social Work, UWI, Mona on Friday, May 15th, 2020. The forum was moderated by Prof. Aldrie Henry-Lee with presentations from Dr Paulette Henry, University of Guyana, Dr Roy McCree, SALISES, St Augustine, Dr Corin Bailey, SALISES, Cave Hill, Dr Grace Cornwall, OECS Commission, and Dr Doreen Gordon, socio-cultural, social inequality and social justice specialist, Mona. The forum discussed how the COVID-19 pandemic has affected social institutions and disrupted social processes and cultural practices. The discussions highlighted how social life has changed and how social inequalities have been amplified; however, it was noted that the Caribbean people were beginning to show signs of recovery and resilience.

New Students’ Orientation

Andria D. Whyte Walters (Jamaica)

“I choose to pursue graduate studies in development studies because I believe that good policies, based on sound research, can really positively impact communities … I believe having carefully researched the options, that this master’s programme is unique, and so beneficial to anybody that would want to impact positively”.

Jeanine Bernard (Trinidad and Tobago)

“Having the online version of the MSc is pretty welcoming for me. I was looking for a way to zone in on what is development and development specifically to our regions. So, when I saw this masters programme, I really was excited…I look forward to learning as much as I can so that I can impact my community, not just in Trinidad and Tobago, but regionally as well”.

Albertha Daniel (St. Lucia)

“I always was interested in development studies, but it was never available online. So, I was very happy when the opportunity presented itself. Just here to basically make an impact. I don’t know what that is but I know I’d like to be able to affect people’s lives positively the same way that my public service affected mine positively”.

New Students' Orientation
Chetwyn Ryce – MSc Development Studies

Chetwyn Ryce, a Barbadian national, has been an International Development Professional for the past 6 years. He holds a bachelor’s degree in Political Science and Law from the University of the West Indies Cave Hill Campus and is also a Communication Development Specialist who heads the Communication Development Unit of the Caribbean Media Corporation (CMC). He is also one of the Managing Directors of RG Development Consultancy which, is a Caribbean-based Consultancy Development firm, that has been contracted by International Donor Organizations and Non-Governmental Organizations to manage and implement various Regional and National Developmental projects across the Caribbean.

Rationale for Entering the SALISES MSc Development Studies Programme

Chetwyn always wanted to attain a comprehensive theoretical understanding of the multifaceted and at times, elusive, definition of the term sustainable development. He relentlessly searched for a degree programme which would provide him with a comprehensive understanding of development, an in-depth understanding of the development challenges faced by Caribbean states and innovative solutions to combat these challenges. The SALISES MSc in Development Studies fulfilled these three (3) main requirements he was searching for in a master’s degree programme and more.

Future Endeavors

The SALISES MSc in Development Studies programme gave Chetwyn a new perspective on what is sustainable development. Going forward, he intends to ensure that target beneficiaries, especially marginalized groups, have a say in projects and programmes which his team conceptualizes to aid in the development of the Caribbean.

In terms of future endeavors, he will soon commence a consultancy with the Government of Barbados to establish a UN Sustainable Development Goals Implementation Unit. The unit will seek to achieve the following objectives:

- Provision of internship opportunities for Barbadian nationals who have retained development type degrees that can aid in the sustainable development of Barbados
- Creation of a sustainable development think tank where young development specialists can propose solutions to the development challenges facing Barbados
- Submission of project proposals to international donor organizations for funding support to implement projects and programmes, which were conceptualized by young Barbadian development specialists

The SALISES MSc in Development Studies programme has empowered Chetwyn to become the kind of development specialist the Caribbean needs to navigate the global challenges thrown up during these uncertain times.

A collection of books on sex trafficking and human trafficking was handed over to the National Task Force Against Trafficking in Persons (NATFATIP). The collection is from the library of the late Rev. Dr. Margaret Fowler, who served as Chairman of the Protection sub-committee of NATFATIP between 2015 and 2019. A virtual ceremony was held on Tuesday, August 25, 2020, to hand over the collection to NATFATIP at the Sir Arthur Lewis Institute for Social and Economic Studies (SALISES), where it will be housed. The donation is a fulfilment of Rev. Fowler’s last wishes for her collection on human trafficking to be made available to students, researchers and human rights advocates and used to enhance the work of NATFATIP. The handover of the collection was organised by family and friends of the late social justice advocate to mark the first anniversary of her passing, which occurred on August 26, 2019.

A minister of religion by profession, her last assignment being at the Hope United Church, Rev. Dr. Fowler dedicated much of her time to fighting for the safety and well-being of young women. Rev. Dr. Fowler, a Scottish-Jamaican theologian and social justice advocate, founded the Theodora Project in Negril in 2004, to rescue, shelter, educate and support victims of trafficking and abuse. She also spearheaded the development of a Child Protection Policy for the United Church in Jamaica and the Cayman Islands to eradicate child abuse.

Farewell

In July 2020 SALISES bid farewell to:

Mr. Dowell Robinson - Groundsman
Miss Simone Truman - Receptionist
Miss Michelle Williams – Grants Writer
Dr Terri-Ann Gilbert-Roberts – Research Fellow

We wish them well in their future endeavours!

Citation Dowell Robinson Retirement

Mr. Dowell Robinson joined the staff of SALISES as a full-time member in March 2001 after having worked as a temporary Groundsman for almost 12 years with the Institute of Social and Economic Research (ISER). During more than 30 years of service to ISER/SALISES combined, Dowell has demonstrated his dedication and determination in undertaking his work.

Dowell is considered to be hardworking, helpful and always willing to go the extra mile when called upon. He took great pride in ensuring that the lawns of SALISES were always in pristine condition sometimes so much so that as the leaves fell, he immediately raked them up. His love for his job was obvious as he hardly missed a day of work and consistently came to work on time so that if we didn’t see him, we knew something was wrong.

Dowell is known for his quiet, humble and unassuming mannerisms, always respectful as he responds to every greeting in a pleasant and dutiful manner. A man of few words, he prefers to get directly to the point when he speaks. But don’t be fooled by his quiet disposition as he would crack jokes and hold a lengthy conversation if he felt comfortable. Only recently, he came out of his shell, through encouragement from the younger staff members, and became an active participant in many of the Institute’s team events.

His love for farming was evident as many times we benefited from the bananas and other produce he brought to sell at the office. He also had a love for Red Stripe and would request a ‘cold one’ as a token for any extra jobs he performed...off duty of course! As we speak of food, it would be amiss to not mention the regular luncheon jests about Dowell’s huge lunch container, always packed to the brim and usually with at least six dumplings and other food or nuff rice and peas!

Dowell, you may see it as gardening, but you were doing so much more. You were beautifying and creating a place for people to feel at harmony and at peace each and every day as we stepped into the work environment. While you will be missed by your SALISES family, you certainly deserve your retirement.
SALISES continued to assist the Kintyre Basic School with the donation of sanitization supplies for the reopening of school. The Principal, Ms. Desrene Mitchell welcomed a team from SALISES to the school on August 19, 2020. She noted that she was extremely grateful for the support from SALISES in helping to fill the gap during these trying times and help equip the school with the critical supplies needed.
